1. The Albert Tower is slightly downhill of the triangular mast with paraboloid aeriels, and is about 60 meters away.
2. There are two paraboloid aeriels on the Rathaus in Leipzig,¹ about the same size as the smaller pair on the triangular mast on the Collmburg. It is believed that the aerial on the western side links up with the Harz area.
3. The wooden tower on the Liebertwolkwitz Kolk is about 60 meters high.² Local inhabitants described it as a jamming transmitter and said that it had been there since approximately February 1953. There is a small wooden hut, about 3 meters high and 1.5 meters square, on top of the tower. No aeriels could be seen, but the weather was very misty and observation could only be carried out from a distance of some 200 meters.
